that cannot go unanswered.

Here is a selection of Heavy Winter Overcoats as broadly varied as was our selection of light and medium-weight garments at the outset of the season.

Of course, such Coats sell for MUCH LESS here than you must pay to match them in any other store. We doubt if any line of apparel ready-to-wear shows GREATER price differences, in favor of the Macy cash system, than you can develop by the old time-tried method of comparisons.

Pernaps the higher prices elsewhere are made high because the Heavy Winter Overcoat season is, practically, a short one. More reason for accepting Macy prices as standard of lowness:

The selection of Heavy Winter Overcoats ready here to-day embraces a great variety of models, including Chesterfields, Single and Double-breasted Coats, "Muto" Coats with patent collars, and various other styles; fashioned, 44 to 52 inches long, of meltons, kerseys, velours, cheviots, tweeds and unfinished fabrics in both plain and fancy ef-
